

Magazine CURRENTS #4 The magazine of a port in motion

In this fourth issue of CURRENTS, experts from a wide range of fields put the issue of multimodality into perspective. A major lever for decarbonisation, it also makes an essential contribution to the robustness and agility of logistics chains, the resilience of territories and the sovereignty of states in a context marked by crises. At the heart of supply chains and at the interface between land and sea flows, ports have a crucial role to play in promoting connections between modes of transport and accelerating modal shift. This is a role that HAROPA PORT has incorporated into its strategy from the outset.
